The Turkish energy authorities decided to supply for a five-month period the electricity that was being lost due to the breakdown of the nuclear reactor in Turkey. The electricity authority in Iran’s Isfahan province has been informed about the breakdown. The relations between the two countries are friendly and will continue to be.

TOKYO—Japanese authorities are raising the Köppen climatic classification from “cwa” to “cbb,” a category that includes tropical rain forests. The new classification will come into effect on April 1, 2007. The Köppen system, which is used in Japan and other Asian countries, is based on the average temperature and precipitation in the region. The new classification is expected to help researchers better understand the climate in the region.

The government has announced that it will allocate $2 billion to the development of renewable energy sources. The funds will be used to support the construction of wind farms, solar power plants, and hydroelectric dams. The government also plans to increase the use of electric vehicles and energy-efficient buildings.

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) has announced that it will allocate $10 million to the restoration of the historical city of Carthage in Tunisia. The funds will be used to restore the city’s ancient walls and buildings, as well as to preserve the city’s cultural heritage.

The government has announced that it will increase the minimum wage by 5% for the coming year. The new minimum wage will be $7 per hour, which is an increase of $0.30 from the current level.

The government has announced that it will allocate $15 million to the development of the mining sector. The funds will be used to support the exploration and extraction of minerals, as well as to promote the use of clean technologies in the sector.

The government has announced that it will allocate $20 million to the development of the tourism sector. The funds will be used to support the development of new tourist attractions and the promotion of the country as a tourist destination.